

implementing these non-conventional diets. The extent of the HIV/AIDS problem in the Sudan and in women specially is overviewed. It is believed that women in households or anywhere else in the society have a role in pushing forward the use of these prophylactic dietary sources in actual meals preparation, through their role in the household or the extensive use of public media.